Betula populifolia 'Royal Frost'

An excellent specimen tree with dark purple, glossy, pendulous foliage providing soft filtered shade in the landscape. Looks great when planted against complementary foliage colours. Best foliage colour is achieved in full sun. leaves turn orange and red in autumn. Newly formed bark goes from a black colour to a creamy white as it matures.

Due to its size and colour, makes a great residential feature tree or bush planting if done in multiples.

Prefers a well drained, humus rich soil.
